

and been interested in finding that Armstrong, formerly a nurse in the Stillman household, who was wanted as a witness for Mrs. Stillman. Arthur said she was finally located at Pasadena, Cal., but that lawyers for Stillman had secured her consent to testify in his behalf, and that she had returned East for that purpose. Arthur said he had just come back from New York, where he had consulted with Mrs. Stillman's attorneys.

Arthur also said he had never heard of any fight of any kind during his period of employment with the Stillmans, and he ridiculed the report that a quarrel had taken place in which shots were exchanged at the Quebec place.

"I have been annoyed for some time by a New York detective," Reynolds said. "It was not until he was certain that the reporter interviewing him was not a detective, that he would talk."

He is an unusually good looking man of twenty-seven years, clean-cut, athletic, with a clear, slightly bronzed skin indicating an outdoor life. He uses excellent English.

The newspaper accounts describing him as a trapper are incorrect," he said. "I have taken out several hunting parties, and I formerly worked for Abercrombie & Fitch, a New York sporting goods firm, but I never was a trapper."

The brother, Arthur Beavine, two years younger than Fred, said Fred would have nothing further to do with the case.

Both Fred and Arthur appeared to be plentifully supplied with money and they were well dressed.

Arthur appeared to be a very strong adherent of the Stillmans, and to be in touch with their lawyers. He also mentioned a Miss Klee, formerly secretary for Stillman, whom he said he had seen at the office of Mrs. Stillman, who was in New York. Arthur said he owned five houses near the one in which Fred was living.

Fred laughed at being described as a "brass statue" and an "Apollo Belvidere."

He was annoyed at having been found and was very much opposed to having his picture taken.

"I never have, to my knowledge, been photographed," he declared. "I don't think it would be well for anybody to try to photograph me without my consent."

STILLMAN CASE

IS HELD UP TO LET INTEREST DIE OUT

Mr. Stillman, near Three Rivers, Quebec, and throwing doubt on the legitimacy of his son, Guy Stillman.

Counsel for the husband have protested earnestly that they were in no way responsible for the failure to keep the court proceedings from the knowledge of everybody except those personally concerned in the case. They were quoted yesterday as saying that in their opinion it was better for both sides to "let public interest in the case wear out" before going further with a trial of the issue.

During her stay at Lakewood Mrs. Stillman has attracted considerable attention, and so has the boy Guy. Mrs. Stillman has appeared in the dining room wearing the head dress which she has made distinctive in the past—a sort of bandana bound tightly around her head. She created a social sensation at her wedding in 1901 by wearing her wedding veil in that fashion instead of in the usual way. Her pictures in recent years have shown her still favoring the same style of head dress.

Another of the principals in the case—the co-respondent named by Mr. Stillman—also was found yesterday. He is the half-breed guide, Ferdinand Desautels, half French-Canadian and half Indian. First reports gave his name as Fred, but it is learned he was named in the complaint. Ferdinand Desautels was employed by the Stillmans, although the exact place was not learned. He is not at Three Rivers, near where the Stillmans were stopping when he was employed by them. It is said he probably will not be called as a witness by either side if the case goes to trial.

Further details regarding Mr. Stillman's complaint came to light today, showing that the husband charged misconduct by Mrs. Stillman and the guide at their country place at Pocantico Hills, as well as in Canada. After he served as the Stillmans' guide in Canada the half-breed was brought to Pocantico Hills to instruct James Stillman, seventeen, in woodcraft.

The complaint does not allege that the guide ever appeared in public with Mrs. Stillman, but it does accompany her to the theatre or to lunch or dinner.

It was also learned that the divorce action was started in Dutchess County, New York, by Justice Morganhauser, who is sitting in the case, has jurisdiction in several counties, however, and has been in Dutchess County when most of the legal steps have been taken.

He is now sitting in Westchester County and will be at the court house in White Plains all week. He was there all day yesterday, but none of the attorneys for either side appeared to argue Mrs. Stillman's motion for summary.

In the divorce action itself hearings have already been held before Surrogate District Judge J. Gleason of Dutchess County, who was appointed referee to take testimony. The hearings have been in New York City and Mr. Stillman's side has completed his case. French-Canadian and Indians have testified through an interpreter. The testimony is a carefully guarded secret.

The success of Mr. Stillman's assault upon the legitimacy of the boy Guy, lawyers said to-day, will depend partly on whether he ever admitted his legitimacy. It was said by persons interested in the case that Mr. Stillman has not recognized Guy as his son since the day of his birth, but considered the question long and deeply before he decided to bring the divorce and illegitimacy action.

Testimony regarding the illegitimacy issue has been taken before the referee along with testimony on the divorce issue. The two issues are inseparable, both the mother and child being named as defendants in the action, but it does not follow that if Mr. Stillman wins the divorce he will

VIVIANI HAS POWER TO NEGOTIATE FOR MODIFIED LEAGUE

Will Point Out to Harding Administration Disadvantages of Separate Peace.

PLAN PARLEYS ABROAD.

England Interested in What Former French Premier May Accomplish Here.

By David Lawrence.

(Special Correspondent of The Evening World.)

WASHINGTON, March 15 (Copyright, 1921).—Although official statements insist that Rene Viviani, former Premier of France, will simply pay a courtesy visit to the United States, the truth is he has full authority to negotiate with the Harding Administration concerning a modified League of Nations.

Mr. Viviani has reported that such proposals or suggestions would not be welcome and would be given serious consideration.

From this incident alone may be derived the first news of the way by which President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes intend to proceed in carrying out the Republican campaign pledge which calls for an agreement with Europe to preserve peace. The fact that the initiative comes from Europe relieves the United States in a sense of the embarrassment of approaching the European Powers with a tale of defects in the present League and suggestions for a substitute. While Mr. Harding has certain ideas concerning an association of nations, he has had no way of knowing until he got into office whether those ideas would prove acceptable to Europe.

Few believe that the Viviani visit will have an immediate effect. On the contrary the expectation is that a conference of European statesmen will follow the return of M. Viviani and that Europe will adopt a course of action after hearing directly or indirectly from the former French Premier just what he had hoped for from the United States.

ENGLAND INTERESTED IN WHAT MAY BE ACCOMPLISHED. While the Government of Great Britain is not sending any envoy to discuss the League of Nations with Mr. Harding, the deepest interest has been exhibited by the British in what may be accomplished by M. Viviani. The former Premier was one of the brilliant figures at the Geneva meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations and is regarded in Europe as one of the ablest of its champions. It was largely through the efforts of M. Viviani, head of the French delegation at Geneva, and Arthur Balfour of Great Britain that a decision was reached to postpone changes in the covenant until the new Administration had come into power at Washington.

M. Viviani, like other Frenchmen, cannot understand why Mr. Harding believes the present League of Nations is superfluous or why it "surrenders sovereignty" because the French themselves insist that they would never surrender their sovereignty to anybody either. The discussion between M. Viviani and the American Government will be largely an explanation of the actual operation of the League and an attempt to discover just what changes the United States would like to have made to clarify the covenant.

But the Viviani mission is predicated on the idea that the present treaty and League must be the framework of any new association. The French decline to believe reports from America that the United States wishes to "scrap the League" or the Versailles treaty. If such proves to be the case M. Viviani will advise Europe and an entirely different policy will be followed by Europe in her relations to the United States. Diplomats here believe that the Allied powers are vitally interested in preventing any separate peace between the United States and Germany because of its effect on the Germans, who already are seeking closer co-operation with America as a means of weakening the moral force of the Allies.

TO POINT OUT SEPARATE PEACE DISADVANTAGES. In a nutshell, M. Viviani will point out the disadvantages to America of deserting the Allies and making a separate peace with Germany and will ask that the United States indicate the character of reservations wanted in the peace treaty. With a few changes, it is known for instance that Europe would accept the Lodge also establish the illegitimacy of the child. Lawyers said that the proof needed to establish illegitimacy is much stronger than that needed to obtain a divorce.

After the alimony question is settled it is expected that the referee will take testimony in Mrs. Stillman's counter-action for divorce, if he has not already done so.

But Comptroller Explains to Satisfaction of Walker, Who Then Lauds Wendell.

(Special from a Staff Correspondent of The Evening World.)

ALBANY, March 15.—Senator James J. Walker of New York City called before City Judge Holden in White Plains to-day the defense presented a document which the husband, Alexander, had drawn up for his wife to sign Dec. 11. In it Murray agreed to watch the children while Mrs. Murray went shopping, but insisted she go in his company when she went to dances, and when she went out other evenings she must return by 11 o'clock. Mrs. Murray did not sign the agreement.

Murray's ultimatum read, in part: "If you agree to these terms, I shall make a nice home for you and make you happy. I do not intend to make your life a drudge. I shall not deprive you of your pleasures. You shall have it in return you shall act toward me in the only way we can and love each other. These things would be:

"That if you go out nights (not every night) you must return before 11 P. M., and if you want to go to dances I want to go too (because I intend to learn how to dance after the holidays).

"I won't ask you to dance with me all night. You can choose whom you want.

"That you must go out with me to a show twice a week, and not be afraid to go out with me and the children if you want to go shopping. I shall watch the children on the streets and go walking while you shop.

"I want you not alone to be my wife. I want you to be a companion to me. My idea, as you think, is not to make a 'little dog out of you.' All I ask is that you act toward me as you did before we were married. Then there shall never be a cross word between us."

Mrs. Murray is employed in a novelty store at White Plains.

CHANCE FOR FORTY-TWO STATES TELLS SUPREME COURT 20 PER CENT. INCREASE WAS NOT NEEDED.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—An increase of 6.4 per cent. in passenger rates on Western roads, instead of the 20 per cent. allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, would have been sufficient to return the amount set by the carriers themselves as due them under the terms of the Transportation Act, the Supreme Court is told in a supplemental brief filed to-day by John E. Benton, Counsel for the forty-two States which are co-operating with Wisconsin in the so-called Wisconsin rate case.

Mr. Benton cited figures covering earnings of the carriers to illustrate his point and declared that upon the basis of these "No valid order could have been made displacing Interstate rates fixed by the laws of Wisconsin."

At this Mr. Littleton appealed to the Court to restrain the witness, remarking: "I've never seen in a court of justice such unbecoming impudence as this witness exhibits."

Just before noon recesses Mr. Wellman announced that by agreement the allegations in the amended complaint with reference to Clifford Moore, named as co-respondent, had been withdrawn.

FLOOD ADMITTED SHOOTING, HE SAYS

Lieutenant Declares Accused Policeman Asserted He Didn't Know Boy Was Killed.

Police Lieut. Donders, testifying to-day at the trial of Patrolman Cornelius J. Flood, who is charged jointly with Policeman Robert A. O'Brien with the murder of James Cushing, sixteen years old, swore that Flood admitted to him shortly after young Cushing's body was found on the roof of No. 540 West 58th Street, that he had fired several shots there to arrest two boys for shooting "craps." Flood, he said, was in plain clothes.

Lieut. Donders declared that both Flood and O'Brien told him they did not know a boy had been killed. He also testified that he saw young Cushing's body, dressed in blue serge trousers, a shirt and a cap, lying near a wall.

Charles Eisenman, one of the first to reach the body, declared that the boy wore a coat and that the policemen were in uniform.

William J. Fallon, counsel for Flood, announced to-day that Assistant District Attorney John F. Joyce in charge of the homicide bureau would be the principal witness for the defense to show that testimony of some witnesses differed from their statements made to the homicide bureau when the boy was shot.

Flood, this morning, told the reporters that this was the joint birthday of his little son and daughter.

"They don't know the fix their daddy is in," he added.
